Some of our customers ask why they should use AVA when there are similar products in the market from the OEM of the actuator. AVA have been working directly with the OEM of the AVA electric actuator since 2015, in the time period, AVA has worked to dramatically develop and expand the range of actuators that were available when we first found the product. Below is a summary of just some of the features and benefits that AVA offer.

Most of the resellers of the OEM product are export houses that are not able to support the product, often demand large quantities to offer competitive price. Often the product is available to your customer as much as it is to you, via online web shops such as Ali Express.
